The Divide in Your World

Mary Magdalene: I speak today about the future. Many in your world want to know what's going to happen, especially in light of some of the disturbing trends that they see in your world. This is understandable. It's natural to want to have understanding and hope.

One of the biggest trends in your world today is the pattern of divisiveness. Many people in your world have become quite polarized, seeming to be on one side or the other of an ideological chasm. This divisiveness isn't just affecting your politics and government. It's affecting your society at all levels, all the way down to relationships within families and between friends. Many of you find yourself pitted against one another with no hope of bridging the gap.

Within the new age spiritual world, there's even divisiveness as to whether humans are in the process of ascending to the fourth or the fifth dimension, or whether some or all of you have already ascended to a higher dimension. I find this debate quite humorous.

I want you to understand that this divisiveness is part of the bigger process of ascension in your world. What I mean by ascension is the transition to higher dimensions and higher states of consciousness, beginning with the fourth dimension.

The fourth dimension is an energy-based realm, in contrast to the third dimension, which is physically based. For most of you, the fourth dimension is the place you go in your dreams. Many of you have also experienced the fourth dimension through visions, mystical experiences, out-of-body experiences, drug-based experiences, shamanic experiences, or near-death experiences. (Many in your world consider these experiences “woo-woo,” which I also find humorous.) And for most of you, the fourth dimension is the realm you will go to in between incarnations.

From my point of view, I would say that human beings and the Earth are in the process of ascending to the fourth dimension. I say this because each dimension has a primary focus of learning associated with it, and you don't ascend to the next dimension until you've completed the learning of the previous dimension.

The learning or focus of the third dimension is power. You won't “graduate” from the third dimension or ascend to the fourth dimension until you've completed your learning as a soul relative to power. In simple terms, this could be summarized as transitioning from “power-over” in third-dimensional consciousness to “power-with” in fourth-dimensional consciousness.

For most of you, this shift into “power-with” has to do with the Feminine and Masculine parts of yourselves and your world coming into unity. This will require you to strengthen your Feminine aspects—of loving your body (including the body of the Earth), your sexuality and energy, and your emotions. When these Feminine aspects of yourself and your world are loved as much as your Masculine aspects of mind and will, that will be the sign that you've completed your learning at the third-dimensional level.

This process of completing your learning at the 3D level is underway, and many of you are making excellent progress, especially those of you who are committed to your spiritual and human growth. At the same time, there are many who aren't progressing as quickly and are still engaging the old third-dimensional paradigms of power-over and competition. Many of your political leaders remain at this earlier stage of spiritual growth, as does a significant portion of your population. As a result, you're seeing an increasing divide in your societies between those who are completing their third-dimensional work and those who haven't yet done so. You could liken it to the parting of the Red Sea that's described in the Old Testament.¹¹⁹

This is part of the ascension process, with some who are ready to transition to the fourth dimension and some who need more time to complete their growth in the third dimension. The further you go into the ascension process, the more there may appear to be two different "camps." Yet, I urge you not to view it this way because that merely reinforces the 3D consciousness of duality, or "us vs. them." Instead, I urge you to see it as a continuum of growth, with different ones at different stages. The ones who are further along aren't superior, nor are the others inferior. That kind of dualistic, divisive thinking is part of third dimensional consciousness.

I call you to shift into the fourth-dimensional consciousness of "us and them." In 4D consciousness, you want what is best for all because you realize your heart-connection to all, including those who are different from you. This isn't just an idea or belief. It's your literal consciousness. You realize that you're only fulfilled when everyone's needs are attended to. As I've said before, it's like being part of the same family. A young child isn't at the same stage as an older child or a parent, but they're all loved, valued, and cared for equally. All are included, or you wouldn't be fulfilled.

The divide in your world is real. Those who aren't ready to ascend will be provided for in a different way than those who are ready to ascend. They'll be given a circumstance that supports them in their continued growth at the third-dimensional level. It will be a different circumstance than the one provided for those moving into 4D. You're in the midst of a literal separation in your world, like a cell dividing and becoming two different organs.

For the most part, those in power in your 3D world know what's happening. They know that the world is changing, and with that, the power structure. They know that their reign of power is doomed because so many are waking up. They know that they can only control the masses as long as people believe the 3D base-assumptions of deficiency and threat. They know that their power is based on keeping people in fear. Because of this, the power elite in your world are committed to keeping people in fear as much as possible.

Yet even as they work to keep you in fear, those in power know that they've already lost. They know that the light will win and even is already beginning to win. Their point of view is that they have nothing to lose, so they're going to go for whatever they want and whatever they can get. You already see the signs of this, with some leaders saying and doing increasingly outrageous things, such as "spinning the truth" in ways that support them.

For those of you moving into the fourth dimension, your job is to stay in love and light. Don't get caught up in what those in power are doing, and most certainly don't get caught up in reacting to it. If you do, you'll have joined their game and are back in duality mode of "us vs. them." Love them, bless them, and know that they're part of God's plan too. But keep your focus on your work of growing in love and light, however that manifests for you. Then you'll be blessing all and supporting the ascension process for all, whether that manifests as transitioning to the fourth dimension or continuing one's spiritual growth in third-dimensional circumstances.

I wish to offer one more thing. I stated earlier that I see humanity and the Earth as transitioning to 4D in the ascension process, and I want to clarify why I see it that way. The learning or focus in the fourth dimension is on manifestation, which you could also call creation. I'm happy to say that this will be a much easier and shorter process of learning than the one in the third dimension, which has taken a very long time. But it's still very real, and it won't be complete until you've attained a level of mastery in the manifestation process, which most of you have yet to do. So this is where you're headed.

But even more so, most of you are still completing your work in the third dimension of loving your bodies, sexuality, energy, and emotions (including your painful emotions) and thus loving all the Feminine parts of your reality. I urge you to focus on this, as doing so will support you the most, and the rest will fall into place naturally. If you distract yourself from completing your work in these arenas, and focus instead on other spiritual areas that may seem more attractive or interesting, you'll simply hold yourself back. You can't skip over your necessary growth. Anything you've skipped will always call you back to complete that area. This is what you might call "karma."¹²⁰

Be prepared for things to appear even worse or more dire on the surface, in terms of divisiveness and a return by some to what may seem to be less caring, less compassionate, less inclusive, less loving. That will probably happen as the ascension process continues and the paths of large sectors of your world split in different directions. See it as a birth process, with some being "born" into a new fourth-dimensional reality. You're going through the birth pangs, which almost always involves pain. Birth isn't an easy process. Be the leader of the new consciousness of loving all and bringing the light. See your world ahead, and stay true to your course. And it will manifest.
